Obituary

Jeffrey T. Bradshaw, Jr. was born to Robin Mercer and Jeffrey T. Bradshaw, Sr. on May 16, 1992 in Manhattan, NY. His life came to a tragic end on September 14, 2010. He lost his battle to the critical wound that was inflicted from his cowardly assailant on September 12, 2010 at 12:30 a.m.

Jeffrey attended OCS Opportunity School where he was a Senior and also one of the founding students. He excelled in his academic process and was actively involved in all vocational programs. Jeffrey was a mentor to the younger students, and a purpose for why the staff came to work every day. Jeffrey's presence was phenomenal. Whenever Jeffrey came into a room, his energy and love gave you a sense of pride to know of him. He knew how to turn a frown into a smile. Due to his drive to make something out of himself, he was drawn to the Harlem Children Zone where he was assisted in finding his road to success.

Although his stay was short, his memory will last forever. When you say Children Zone, you think "Jeffrey Zone". The Children Zone gave Jeffrey his first opportunity to join the work force and become a positive black male role model in today's society. Jeffrey's ability to befriend someone was rare. The love he gave could not be emulated, but it can now be celebrated.

Preceding him in death are his grandmothers, Charlotte Mercer of Staten Island, NY and Mattie M. Bradshaw of Bronx, NY; grandfather, William T. Bradshaw of New York, NY.

He is survived by: his mother, Robin Mercer; father, Jeffrey T. Bradshaw, Sr.; step mother, Marion Bradshaw; sisters, Shakia Mercer, Tiffany McCall, Ramona Williams and Jemari F. Bradshaw; brother, Jeffrey W. Bradshaw; step sisters, Shaniqua McCall and Jackie McCall; aunts, Charlene Mercer, Denise Mercer, Beverly Mercer and Christina Holland; uncles, Bobby Harris, George Mercer and Charles Holland; his girlfriend, Shinise; two nieces; two nephews; and close friends.

*Today my heart is heavy;
My faith is tested, my emotions
Are arrested, but through all
Of the pain and heartache, one
Thing remains. I Love You and
Respect you and I will never forget you.
Just as I developed a
Stronger spiritual relationship with
Your grand ma, I now share that with you
Give God the Bradshaw hand shake.
Tell Grandma I Love her, and I promise
You that justice will prevail.*
