Let It Die

We were alike me and you
Chose our own path and followed through
In my eyes you was a pot of gold that lost its shine
Why you had to go and let it die?
I seen your face in another light
It's a shame you died that night
You went out with a bang all because you joined that gang
Why you had to go and let it die?
You were in too deep and was out of time
This may be my greatest poem in all my life
Just for, I'll give it my all
Why you had to go and let it die
You beat me up so many times
To the point I wanted to die
At that cause became so strong
Why you had to go and let it die?
Do you ever think of me?
Oh how considerate
I'll think of you till I get there
But why you had to go and let it die?!?

Reflections of Life

Marquis Lamar Robinson was born on August 19, 1986 to Kim Monique Robinson and Marvin Anderson at Beth Israel Hospital in Newark, New Jersey. He was a loveable child that always had a smile and a joke or two. Marquis attended and graduated from George Washington Carver. He had his first job at the age of ten at a clothing store on Lyons Avenue. After graduating from Carver, Marquis attended both Newark Technical School and Weequahic High School.

Marquis entered the work field at the age of eighteen. He worked in the clothing retail business, furniture and also for White Rose in Carteret, NJ. Marquis had a loveable personality, he loved to joke and kept you laughing all the time. He was loyal to those he loved and those who loved him. He was a true confidante and a joy to be around. He had a contagious personality, once you truly knew Marquis, you loved him.

Marquis is survived by: his mother, Kim Robinson; his father, Marvin Anderson preceded him in death; grandparents, Ronald Cureton, Eunice Robinson preceded him in death; an aunt, Dolores Robinson; brother, Kyle Botts; sister, A'ly sai Antoinette Robinson; cousins, Kenyatta Robinson (Daeja, Jydae, Keyshawn), Antwan Robinson, Ashante Redding and Ismail Redding; his soul mate, Amina Nobles; and a host of other relatives and friends.

Saying Goodbye

I asked myself why you had to go
That's a rhetorical question I want an answer to Yet my request fell on deaf ears
No response was granted
Losing someone as close as you
Makes me wonder why life is so cruel
I reflect on the times we shared, the laughter, the chatter, and the cries
Now they are all precious memories
Stored and locked away in my heart
Until we meet again, dear cousin
I will forever hear your last goodbye
Than I heard a faint whisper in my ear
Saying don't mourn for me; I'll always love you
God will wipe your tears away
Goodbye.
