Obituary

Dolores Ellen Croudy was born to Robert and Gertrude Fullerton on September 15, 1936 in Harlem, New York. She entered into eternal life on June 1, 2012.

Though born in Harlem, Dolores was happily raised by her maternal grandmother, Georgia Hamlin in Lawrenceville, Virginia until moving to East Orange, New Jersey.

Dolores was a pediatric nurse at Saint Mary's Hospital in Orange and Muhlenberg Hospital in Plainfield, New Jersey until she decided it was time for a career change. So with desire and determination she landed a job in the mailroom of what was known at the time as Bell Labs. She quickly moved her way up and became an invaluable administrator. She was a Trustee of the Rose of Sharon Community Church where she also assisted with the soup kitchen giving the homeless a warm meal and friendly conversation. After her retirement she enjoyed visiting the seaside cities of Maryland and Virginia, as well as traveling frequently to the Virgin and West Indies Islands before settling in Raleigh, North Carolina.

As a loving and dedicated family member, Dolores was affectionately referred to by family members as "Croudy", "Dee", "Aunt See", "Grandee" and "Mom". Dee leaves to cherish her memory: her children, Wanda Croudy, Matin Abdel-Qawi and Dina Croudy; her grandchildren, DeLora, Randal, Umar, Aneesah, Sayyid and Klara; her brother, Robert Fullerton of California; sisters, Brenda Harker of California, Carmen Littlejohn of New Jersey and Barbara Nell of Florida; along with a host of nieces, nephews, cousins, two aunts, and her former spouse Roger Croudy.
