

Letter to my mommy,
My stinky, my best friend, my rock, my #1 supporter I miss you oh so much. I ask myself everyday "why did my baby leave me?" "How could she leave me knowing she's all I have?" "What am I going to do without my angel." Seeing you lay there in the hospital bed in pain knowing there was nothing I can do made me upset, mad, frustrated and useless. I was there with you every step of the way while you made your transition and it was the worst, painful thing I ever had to encounter. Knowing that I will no longer hear your voice, see your face and smile or feel your touch is an indescribable emotion. I miss hearing "goodnight turtle, I love you," every night and "good morning stinky, go make us some breakfast," every morning. From this day forward holidays, birthdays, and special events will never be the same. We been through so much and I am so honored, grateful and blessed that we had time to rebuild our relationship. I'm happy you found GOD before you made your transition and knowing that I know your in a much better place. We've come along way and yet we have so much more to accomplish, our journey is not finished. Your free from your pain, stress, agony, and other burdens you had and I am happy your not suffering or in pain no more but I am still lost without you my mommy. We shall see each other again until then I Love You and Rest In Paradise my stinky.

Love Your Babygurl

Obituary

Ms. Michelle Lee Moore aka Malikah was born on April 9, 1967 to the late Reginald Moore and the late Mary Esther Moore in Newark, NJ. She made her transition home on December 16, 2013 due to illness.

Michelle was educated in the Newark Public School system where she attended Peshine Avenue School and then Weequahic High School. Upon graduation she attended Wilfred Academy Beauty School receiving a certificate in Hair Design.

Michelle was employed at the Woodbridge Developmental Center where she met George Lewis. They conceived the apple of their eyes, a daughter, Midavia Alicia Lewis-Moore.

During the course of Michelle's life she was an attentive, compassionate and loving caregiver to many children. She also had a special love and dedication to her family, friends, and acquaintances. Her main passion was dancing which she frequently did from the time she was a small child.

She was a faithful member at Mt. Calvary Missionary Baptist Church. She also was dedicated to her Women's Bible Study Group that she started at home, after attending bible study at church. Michelle was a God fearing woman who always encouraged others to accept Jesus Christ to be their Lord and Savior. She enjoyed reading the bible. She was a powerful prayer who always prayed.

Michelle was preceded in death by her daughters' father, Mr. George Lewis; her grandparents, Robert and Ruby Lee Moore, two aunts, Ms. Ollie Roach and Geneva Moore and uncle Mr. Robert "Baby Boy" Moore, Jr.

Michelle leaves to forever share fond memories: her adoring daughter, Midavia (Turtle); sister, Patricia; two brothers, Darryl (Felicia) and Edward Washington (Angela); four nephews; two nieces; a great aunt, Ms. Mable Glenn; and a host of family, close friends and coworkers.
