Obituary

Alice May Holloman, the daughter of Wilkens A. and Mollie Booker, was born on March 24th 1932 in Amelia, Virginia. She attended Russell Grove High School in 1949, then moved to New York where she met and married William Leon Holloman. Their marriage produced five beautiful children: Charlene, Leon (playfully known as Buddy), Thomas, Lorenzo and Catherine.

Alice, known as Grandma Holloman to many, wasn't just known for spoiling her grand kids, kind heart, generosity and brutally honest points of view, she was also known for her meals. No one made better sugar grits, fried chicken and baked cakes better than Grandma Holloman.

Grandma Holloman was afraid of thunder and lightning, she'd say, "Turn off everything, don't make a sound and sit in the hallway." She said she'd never get on a plane.

Alice is survived and loved by many including: her three brothers, William, James, Reginald and sister, Lucy Booker; her two daughters, Charlene Holloman and Catherine Harrison; her two sons, Thomas and Lorenzo Holloman; son in-law, James Harrison; daughters-in-law, Ayesha Holloman, Priscilla Mitchell and Linda Butler; eighteen grandchildren, eleven great grandchildren; and a host of nieces, nephews and cousins.

Miss Me, But Let Me Go

*When I come to the end of the road and the sun has set for me,
I want no rites in a gloom filled room,
Why cry for a soul set free?
Miss me a little-but not too long,
and not with your head bowed low.
Remember the love that we once shared,
Miss me-but let me go.
For this is a journey that we all must take,
And each must go alone.
It's all part of the Master's plan,
A step on the road to home.
When you are lonely and sick at heart,
Go to the friends we know.
Laugh at the things we use to do
Miss me-but let me go.*
