Obituary

Henry Lee Marable was born in Newark, New Jersey to the late Dorothy Marable and the late Lee Hayworth. Henry started his education in the Newark Public Schools but at an early age he moved to Oxford, North Carolina and continued his education.

At a very young age, Henry displayed an ability in the arts. He frequently, after seeing a movie, would talk about the actors, scenes, and the music in the pictures, continuing on and on and on. Thus, motivating him to become an actor, writer and a director.

He wrote and directed many plays that were staged around N.J. Eventually, he opened a school called, The Marvel Method School of Acting and Drama. At the school he taught acting and writing. He struggled at acting, in N.J., for a long while before deciding to move to Hollywood, California where he thought his abilities and skills would be better recognized. Plus, he despised the cold weather on the east coast. The Chuck Barris Production, which produced The Gong Show, were very interested in his Act. Nothing ever materialized from that. One day while acting on the street he was asked to be an extra in the movie Death Wish 2. While in Hollywood, he decided to change his name to Alvanico deJulian. This is the name that he referred to until his death.

After spending several years in California, Alvanico decided to return to New Jersey. He had a tremendous spiritual and religious base to his plays and performances. In 1984 he organized a troupe called Men On The Move For God.

His troupe performed as street actors, spreading the word of God and preaching to anyone that would listen and wanted to hear the word. As an Evangelist Minister, Alvanico would sing, preach, and pray. He loved the church and he loved God. In 1990 he was ordained Prophet Alvanico de Julian.

Alvanico leaves to cherish his memories his brother, Bernard King; sister, Sherry Dorell Brantley Esq.; brother-in-law, David Brantley Esq.; nephews, Bernard Brian King and Rahsaan King; great nephews, Rahsaan King and Adam King; great niece, Starr King; and a host of other relatives and friends.

Afterglow

*I'd like the memory of me
To be a happy one,
I'd like to leave an afterglow
Of smiles when the day is done.
I'd like to leave an echo
Whispering softly down the ways,
Of happy times and laughing times
And bright and sunny days.
I'd like the tears of those who grieve
To dry before the sun
Of happy memories that I leave behind,
When the day is done.*

-Helen Lowrie Marshall

DON'T

Don't spend too much time in mourning;
Tears are for the sad.
I left to be with Jesus
And this should make you glad.
Don't waste your hours in grieving;
No need to feel distressed.
I got tired of life's frustrations
And had to get some rest.
Don't vex yourself with questions
Or try to reason why;
Life here for me has ended,
It came my time to die.
Don't lose the love I gave you;
Feed it with your care.
Grow it with devotion
And spread it everywhere
Don't fret because my leaving
Came in such a way
We'll have another meeting
On God's eternal Day.

Acknowledgement
