Never Be Gone

Although you do not see her, she is right there by your side Although you cannot feel her touch, she has you in her arms Although you do not hear her voice, those words continue to direct your path Although she is not around, she will never be gone The heart determines who we are and what we become As long as you keep her in your heart, she will continue to influence your life Think about the times you had together do not dwell on her not being around Dwelling will cause you to forget her and the times you want to cherish There are many people in your life that you have an influence on Realize the influence you have on others will be due to the influence she had on you As you influence others she remains alive through them Although she is not around she will never be gone because she's living through you and others.
