The Unread Letter

I know now that I miss you just like you said I would but I'm thankful for all the memories we've made over the twenty-eight years you told me to hold on to you and hold you is what I did until I looked at you and see a blinding glow and I came to terms with it and realized I had to let you go. I know you're in a better place you even told me so all that's left for you to do is rest. I'll be okay. I know I'll have a tomorrow when I can smile again but tomorrow seems like forever today and that's a long time away.

I say to you this day words you always heard me say, Lamont Johnson you are the man I always wanted to love. Although this letter may go unread but every word is true but then that may not be true because these are the words I always spoke to you.

God has blessed you so now this is a good-bye.
Love of Your Life, Wifey

Acknowledgement

Perhaps you sent a lovely card or sat quietly in a chair.
Perhaps you sent a floral piece If so, we saw it there.
Perhaps you spoke the kindest words as any friend could say.
Perhaps you were not there at all just thought of us on that day.
Whatever you did to console our hearts, We Thank You, Whatever the part.
