Obituary

Jerome Smith, affectionately known as "Juju" and "Romeski," was born on July 14, 1989, to his parents Erika and "Big Jerome. First born son, as well as grandson, brother, nephew, and cousin, Jerome brought joy and pride to his family from the very beginning.

Known for his vibrant personality and "main character energy," Jerome was often the life of the party, bringing laughter, positivity, and great vibes wherever he went. His bright spirit, warm smile, and genuine heart made it easy for others to love him. He had a natural way of making people laugh and was always ready with a joke or playful humor.

Jerome loved music, dancing, and had a deep passion for basketball. He also enjoyed cooking, baking, and raising dogs, showing just how versatile and creative he was. Handsome and full of charm, Jerome was known for his good looks and confidence—he knew he was that guy. The ladies especially loved his signature "sexy lisp," a unique and unforgettable part of his charm that made him even more endearing.

Above all, Jerome was a loving father and cherished his family deeply. Though his time here was far too short, he leaves behind countless memories filled with love and laughter. Even through life's challenges, he carried himself with strength and continued to wear a smile that inspired those around him.

Jerome leaves to cherish his memory his oldest son Jayison, the late Jerome Jr., baby Zhavia, and his daughters Jordyn and Janaiya, along with his father, grandmother, brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles, cousins, family, and friends.

He is now reunited in eternal peace with his beloved mother and son, resting in a place where love knows no pain.

Jerome will forever be remembered for his laughter, his love for life, and the joy he brought to everyone around him.

"Those we love never truly leave us. There are things that death cannot touch—love, memories, and the legacy they leave behind."
