If tears could build
a stairway,
And memories a lane
I'd walk right up to heaven and bring you home again

Perhaps you sent a lovely card or sat quietly in a chair.
Perhaps you sent a floral piece If so, we saw it there.
Perhaps you spoke the kindest words as any friend could say.
Perhaps you were not there at all just thought of us on that day.
Whatever you did to console our hearts, We Thank You, Whatever the part.

Alice Moore was born on August 28, 1942, in Ayden, North Carolina, to McKinley and Louise Smith. She arrived in this world like the day that she left, fighting. She departed this life on November 15, 2019.

Alice, known to be called Cheryl, was educated in the Pitt County North Carolina School System. She later moved to Newark, NJ, where she met her life-long love, Ernie McKay. They had two sons, Andre and Quincy. Alice was not employed but was a homemaker and loving mom who doted on her two sons. Alice was kind-hearted, give you her last, but fierce and a force to reckon. She could be heard saying from time to time, “don’t mess with my boys.”

Although she shared a close relationship with her siblings, there was a special bond with her baby sister, Peggy who was near her age. If you thought you had an encounter with one think again, you had a meeting with both. The term for those two today would be gangsta. From the time Peggy was born into this world, their bond was cemented. They even lived in the same dwelling their whole life until her stay at the Park Crescent Nursing Home a few years ago.

Alice was preceded in death by her parents, McKinley and Louise Moore; son, Quincy Moore; sisters, Louise Taft, Ruth Butts, Maggie Wichard; Rosa Moore and brother, James Elijah Moore.

Alice leaves to cherish her precious memories, her son, Andre Moore; sister, Peggy Moore; and Life-long Love, Ernie McKay, and a host of relatives and friends.
