Obituary

Seville Grant affectionately known as “DEE” was born on January 18, 1968 to George and Hing Grant in Newark, New Jersey where she was educated and lived as a lifelong resident.

From a young age, Dee marched to the beat of her own drum; with little care of what others thought. Growing up with her siblings and cousins, she’d protect and defend them at whatever the cost! She was the smallest but acted like the Biggest.

Dee had a spirit to persevere and to never give up no matter what; she was a fighter! To have known her, is to love her because she was down to earth and told it like it t’was. She spoke her mind so that you’d always know what position you held in her life. When you invited her out she’d be one of the best dressed and most remembered once everyone left; she was a free spirit! She had a passion for the road and driving made her heart throb. She drove for various companies and limousine services for many years.

Dee had an amazing bond with her grandson Imrie. He affectionately called her Nana and they loved spending time together. She also enjoyed singing SOULFUL Christmas songs, dancing, cooking, and eating a good meal with people she loved and that she knew loved her. Talking on the phone to her family, cracking jokes, reminiscing, sitting on the front porch or in her courtyard, and watching football (GO BIG BLUE- NY Giants) were a few of her favorite pass times! She even took on DJing as a side gig; and she was good at it! She did what she felt in her heart and whatever it took to take care of herself and her daughters. This same spirit lives in her girls who will cherish her memory forever.

Dee will truly be missed. Left to mourn her are her parents: Hing Shaw and George Grant; her two daughters Starville and Alyssa Grant; one grandson Imrie Oliver Grant; her siblings: Shawn Washington, Tyrone Shaw, Jerome Grant, Terry Shaw, Angela Shaw, Nickole Watson, Steven Watson, Christina Bryant and a host of relatives; and close friends.
