Obituary

On Friday, April 5, 1991 Galan Jerome Washington was born in Downtown Manhattan and raised in the Bronx, NY by his amazing parents Nancy White and Jerome (Dell) Washington.

Growing up, Galan was definitely known for his personality, his positive energy and setting goals and reaching them. Galan looked up to his older brother Nduka, always talking about everything he taught him and how much he helped him open his eyes to the world. Not only did Galan look up to his older brother, but he had his younger brother Brelan who looked up to him as an idol and deeply loved him. Galan was a great role model to Brelan. Galan and his brother's bond was amazing and so strong. True definition of brotherly love.

Galan was such a hard worker when it came to his personal life. He graduated high school and did some years in college before deciding he wanted a career in transportation. He set in his mind that's the career he wanted and he did everything to get it. He would study, went through many driving classes, took so many tests and received all his licenses to drive different vehicles. Even though he got where he wanted, he always wanted more and pushed himself.

Ever the entrepreneur, Galan and his father decided to start a trucking business. Galan's approach was to be the broker while his father did the heavy lifting! Unfortunately, the dream never came to fruition. Whatever he put his heart and mind to, he got it done. He lived by the quote "success doesn't just come and find you, you have to go out and get it"

On July 26, 2011 Galan became a father to an amazing, smart and beautiful little girl, Megan Honesty Washington. Galan did everything he could for her, always spoke so highly of her and just admired everything about her. He taught her things from his experience and always said he wants her to have a great life. Galan was an amazing father and wanted only the best for his little girl. No matter how many birthdays passed or how much older she got he always said she'll always be his little baby.

A few years later Galan met Sarah through a mutual friend and instantly hit it off. They always spoke of a future together, getting married, starting a family and just living happy together.

On February 19, 2019, Galan & Sarah Washington began to put their future dreams into reality. Galan was a great husband. He was caring, loving, supportive, a hard worker and so selfless.

Galan was the man with the plan. He would think ahead to make sure he handles all the necessities and then comes his fun. If you know Galan you know he LOVED his sneakers. Keeping up with sneaker releases, making sure he gets those sneakers and then planning a whole outfit to go with it. Playing poker was also something Galan loved to do on his free time. He would always say poker is great because it's about strategy and to examine and read other players.

Galan was a great son, father, brother and husband. The time we all had with him will never be forgotten and will forever and eternally be engraved in our memories and hearts. Galan will forever be missed, loved and remembered for all the greatness he blessed us with for his time spent with us.

Galan leaves to cherish his love & memory parents: Nancy White & Jerome (Dell) Washington; Bonus Mother, Brenda Washington; siblings: Nduka, Brelan, Britt, Breffour & Breeann; daughter, Megan Honesty Washington as well as a host of aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews, cousins & friends too numerous to name.
