Obituary

Marshall Davis was born on August 13, 1958 in Seale, Alabama to Florie Crowel and Jessie Davis. Marshall spent most of his childhood in Seale, Alabama. He also lived in Phenix City, Alabama and Columbus, Georgia before coming to The Bronx, New York in the 80's.

Marshall held various jobs during his lifetime, ranging from work as a school grounds keeper, landscaping, maintenance and security services.

Marshall was many things to many people. He was well received in his community and made an impact in many lives. He was a family man, friendly, funny, generous, caring, cheerful, loving, spiritual and much more. Marshall always had an encouraging word or joke to tell. He liked social outings especially those that included music and dancing. Marshall was also very faith driven. He was a former member at The Salvation Army and participated in many of their community services. His most recent spiritual home was Whosoever Will Ministries with Pastor Kevin Quarles. He was also in service to the Whoso Hospitality Ministry.

Marshall was preceded in death by his parents, Florie Crowell and Jessie Davis.

FINAL DISPOSITION:

Rosehill Crematory
Linden, New Jersey

I knew a man who showed me how to dream,
to make the best of my situation means.
Through the stories of his life, I became compelled
A love for me never to fail. My greatest ally, cheering on my side, preparing me for the journey
the bumps on the ride. Now that I have arrived,
I have conquered my pride to see the destination was always inside. I grew into a man his character
I will display, I no longer fear the night, I live for the day.
I strive for his wisdom, a deck of Queens to protect
A winning gamble on a full house bet.
I knew a man he showed me how to dream.
I knew a man who turned a boy into a king.
