Obituary

Jacqueline Annmarie Rhoden Gopaulsingh, was the seventh child of the family of nine boys and girls, Jackie as we affectionately called her was born on October 15, 1966, the youngest of the Rhoden's girls and mother of two beautiful girls, with Harry Gopaulsingh

We remember her being so small, but yet so determined, led by her heart and her belief. Jackie never knew what it was to be selfish, she was constantly giving, her heart was that of a true angel. Coming from a Spiritual background she went in the church at a tender age. Jackie was very dedicated to the church and it's work, but being the type of person she was Jacqueline wouldn't stop there. Wherever she saw it fitting Jackie would stretch out her hands in fostering and funding for children living in need around the world, she was always one to think of others before she thought of herself, and always put God first.

She would offer extra lessons to her nephews, nieces and anyone whom she thought would need it. Preparing them for their upcoming exams, she would partly use our home as a place to study rather than a place to play, as I'm sure she instilled the same principles in her two beautiful daughters Janeilya and Jayanlorae because they ment the world to her.

While living in Jamaica she worked at several top firms as an Accountant. Those who worked along side her would often speak of her passion and commitment to her job. Courtney her youngest brother remember visiting her one day while she was at work at Pan Jamaican company. The Security there was an old ruffian as we call people who are stern in Jamaica. As he approached the entrance of the Pan Jamaican building his fierce eyes followed his every step as he walked up to the information counter. "A who yuh come to? He asked with a detective glance. His whole countenance changed when I said Jacqueline Rhoden, "Oh yuh mean dah pretty girl deh pan di seventh floor?" He would have given me the keys to the building after I told him I was her brother.

Our sister wasn't only kind hearted, she was also highly intelligent and dedicated to success. Even when she left her homeland, Jackie ventured overseas because the sky was the limit for her, after spending several years in America, Jackie met and Married Harry and they both have two daughters, Jackie have a lot of working experience in many different fields including Real Estate Agent and Chartered Accountant just to name a few. Jackie had even her own business in East Orange doing Account work for individuals and companies in our area where she lived in New Jersey. She was the type of person that is always on the move and stop at nothing. Always pushing herself to the next level.

You would say Jacqueline wasn't just a normal individual, for most people she was a beauty queen in fact she was. Our fondest memory of her was when she entered a beauty pageant in Portmore Jamaica where she lived before migrating, under the sash of Miss Waterford, were she was place second, Her youngest brother carried a photo of that moment with him for years. Because he was very proud of his sister Jackie. Jackie was the woman who saw this world for what it is and would have given everything to change it for the better. Sleep well our sister, you will always be in our hearts, forever.
