RECESSIONAL

Private Inurnment

The Green-Wood Crematory
Brooklyn, New York

I'm not scared I knew the day would come one day.
I knew my presence was temporary, so I have no anguish with the presented date.

Remorse doesn't reside in my heart anymore.
I'm finally free.

He called and I answered.

He held out his hand to guide me through the gate.
He told me to leave sorrow at the entrance. Grief is not permitted and I enthusiastically let it go without thought.
Relief is the song of the choir.

Please don't feel pity for me,
my everlasting days will be without destruction and pain.

My moans are joyous and of meaning now.
I've been casted for my 2nd act and I plan to take advantage as the 1st.

I'm here in memoriam but my spirit exist in all of you.
Close your eyes and confide in our connection. I'll anoint the strength and courage to preserve your existence.

True love will never diminish
so my absence will never feel empty.

Remember I'm not scared.

The continuation of my journey is now catered by faith.
