Dear Lord

I see you have called one of your Angels' home. She was, and she remains our everything; how can the wound heal without her love and care. Who will answer our call when she was always there?

Dear Lord

Can I speak to her just one more time? I miss you much; I miss your touch, I miss your smile that is so profound, I see it in my dreams,

Dear Lord

Know that this day pain has entered; this is our coldest winter. Protect our Queen ~ Sleep well, Mother; you were like no other. But in the center, we stand as one. Although your new life has just begun, I remain your son, and don't worry; your daughter is still a Slaughter. You brought us together like you said you would. We love you then, and we love you now. Goodbye, my Queen, or better yet, I'll see you later.

Dear Lord

 Heknowledgements
