Obituary

On April 6, 1949 Ellen L. Jackson was born in Harlem, N.Y. to Dorothy L. Jackson, she was the eldest of three daughters. Thereafter being raised with both mother and grandmother in the home, at age 11 her mother decided to relocate to Brooklyn N.Y. with her sisters Tanya and Kim. She later went on to attend and graduated from Franklin K. Lane.

Maturing into adulthood and becoming a young mother to both daughters Lynn and Celeste catapulted her into becoming a financially independent and well traveled woman.

Ellen worked as a Senior Examiner and Typist before beginning her career at SUNY Downstate Medical Center in the Anesthesiology Department, where she subsequently spent 43 years of service. Throughout her time at Downstate she met many people who became lifelong friends.

Following giving birth to her son Hassan, Ellen purchased a home in Queens N.Y. to give her children the best life possible, there her foundation was laid and her family expanded as she welcomed her first grandchild in 1990 Tyrele and two weeks later a granddaughter Phylliceia. Three years later Ryan was born making him her last grandchild.

Ellen was well known by the people who loved her for her witty ways, deep voice and nurturing character. She opened her home to many and asked for nothing in return. She passed down lessons books couldn't teach, she was an opinionated woman with faces to match, she loved her coffee, cigarettes and gossiping with her great niece Kimora, she played word games with friends on her iPad then got frustrated when she couldn't figure the word out. She watched her t.v. programs "The Waltons and Rifleman" to be exact. She paid her bills the day after they were delivered, and never missed anyone's birthday or saying her morning prayers.

She was extraordinary beyond an infinite amount of words.

She now lives through her youngest sister Kim Lipscomb, her children Lynn, Celeste and Hassan. Her grandchildren Tyrele, Phylliceia and Ryan. Her great grandchildren Peyton, Jaylee, Shawn, Isaiah and Legacy. Lovingly her nieces, nephew, great nieces, great nephews and cousins. Blessings of extended family.

To say she will be missed is an understatement so we the family ask that she's celebrated not just today but every time you put a prayer in the air.

We love you "Ma" "Grandma" "Nana" "Auntie" "Cuz" Infamously known as "Ms. Jackson"
