I tried writing this to you with a dry eye, but my pen could not hold back the tears, wishing you were still here.

A beautiful man with a golden heart left us all.

Grieving and moaning

The nights are long, now that you're gone A man strong like steel, gentle as a dove

Few words but his actions spoke volume

His purpose has been accomplished: to protect and secure his family, True warrior he was indeed, and now

1God has called this warrior back home.

Tears we cried, yet we'll become strong

Just think of him as resting

From the pain and sorrows

In a place of warmth and comfort

We'll be thinking of you as living

In our hearts and those he touched.

For nothing that is loved is forever

And he was loved so much.

Until we meet again, sleep in peace.

We will always love you beyond forever.
